My daughter loves her and so do all my friends! So, be warned...if you are expecting, this is a very sweet cake to make! The instructions are really easy, but there is a LOT of work involved. Why not check out the first birthday cake I made (here). This will take you like a day to make! => However, it will look wonderful and taste delicious. Let's face it, there is no better compliment than someone saying, "Wow, that cake looks amazing! You made it yourself?" I'm not saying that you should jump on the "cake-making" bandwagon, but having something beautiful is worth the time to make it. Make sure you read the instructions in the post. I am not responsible for any mistakes in the instructions. I'm only responsible for myself! => For my baby girl, I made a teddy bear cake. It is a cute cake, but would be super easy to customize to look more like the ones you see in books or magazines. For example, I could use the Wilton® cake topper for the head. There is another option for the face, the option to find or make a cute baby doll face in a book or on the web. *Sorry for using a picture of a different cake for this. You will need the whole cake. Can you tell I love how it turned out? I'm so proud of my little baby girl and I wanted to make sure she had a birthday cake that I could share. She is one now, so I decided to share it! Also, if you would like to make this cake for yourself, I have attached a link to a free printable file so you can print and use it to make the cake! Also, you will need: Teddy bear cutout - purchased or make with the Wilton® cake topper. I also made a teddy bear cake (see bottom of the post for instructions). Make sure it is a bear...I found a boy bear for my daughter. Parchment paper Wilton® cake board or any cake board you have that is 9" in diameter. I have seen some really neat things you can make with cake boards! Cake board or cake stand. My daughter loves these cake stands. They are so easy to clean up. I found mine at Target for $10. I think they are made by Wilton. Baby doll head/face – cutout, paint, or use a store bought doll head 82157476af
